

People's detention at the peacekeeping post on the Dniester River examined by the ECtHR

On May 16, 2019, the European Court of Human Rights (ECtHR) communicated to the Governments in Chisinau and Moscow that it received for examination the case of Manole and Postica v. the Republic of Moldova and the Russian Federation.

The case concerns the situation, where Russian soldiers detained three persons and without any warning illegally opened fire (using a Kalashnikov automated weapon), thus putting at risk the lives and physical integrity of dozens of peaceful people.

On July 19, 2005, at 16.00, two members of the Promo-LEX

Association (Ion Manole and Alexandru Postica) and another person that is not an applicant in the given case, were detained at a "peacekeeping post", while travelling from Cosnita to Chisinau on the grounds that they shot an advertisement placed near the post no. 9 with the inscription "Have a safe trip – Dubasari District". A Russian officer, who was the head of the military group, demanded that the film on the camera be deleted.

The members of Promo-LEX asked the Russian officer to draw up procedural documents on this request, but the officer suddenly become very aggressive and threatened them. On the phone, he requested his superiors from Dubasari to come to the place.

Even when several representatives of the military and witnesses from various organizations arrived at the place, Russian soldiers continued to behave aggressively towards the peaceful people present on the scene, and despite their insistence, the soldiers refused to unblock the car that belonged to the persons abusively detained. At a certain moment, for no reason and without warning the people and policemen present there, the Russian soldier produced two bursts of sub-machine gun fire. Due to the professional intervention of a traffic police officer from Dubasari district, a serious incident that could end up tragically was avoided.

The incident was solved only after midnight by the joint efforts of the representatives of the national, central and local constitutional authorities, as well as due to the prompt reaction of the journalists, civil society and many locals from Dubasari district, who unblocked the traffic and released the car of the Promo-Lex representatives. However, those who ordered the detention did not draw up any record, nor did they justify their behavior.

Before the Court, the applicants claimed that their rights under Articles 3, 5 § 1 and 13 of the Convention had been violated.

The Court asked the parties questions about the existence or non-existence of violations under the described circumstances.

According to a new practice, the examination of cases by the ECtHR takes place in two stages: in a non-contentious procedure – where the parties are given the opportunity to settle the case amicably and in a contentious procedure – where the parties will be able to submit their observations, if the reconciliation fails.

For the first stage, the Section President decided to give the parties time (till September 18, 2019) to decide whether the parties can settle the case amicably.

We emphasize that this is not the only case when Russian peacekeepers abusively opened fire against civilians. The appeals made by the Promo-LEX Association in the period of 2005-2012 on the purpose, location and clear regulation of the presence of these armed troops on the territory controlled by the constitutional authorities were ignored. Thus, on January 1, 2012, a soldier from the same peacekeeping post deadly shot an 18-year-old man from Parata.

The Promo-LEX Association reiterates the need for an analysis and discussion on the relevance, risks and socio-economic and security impact of at least two posts in Vadul-lui-Voda, one of which is located on the territory of Chisinau – the capital of the Republic of Moldova.

Information about the status of peacekeeping forces in international law can be found in the study developed in 2015.

Final Report of the Promo-LEX OM: parliamentary elections of 2019 marked by intimidation, misuse of administrative resources and rewards

The Promo-LEX Association presented the final results of the 2019 Parliamentary Election Observation Mission in a post-electoral conference under the heading “Conclusions and recommendations of the Promo-LEX Observation Mission for the parliamentary elections of 24 February 2019”.

The Association is mainly concerned with the growing misuse of administrative resources, intimidation of its observers, generation of discriminatory messages by some electoral competitors, offering of electoral gifts, as well as by candidates' failure to report expenses of at least 5,200,863 lei.

The parliamentary elections of 24 February 2019 have been organized under a new electoral system. Electoral bodies fulfilled their duties appropriately and within the legal limits. However, electoral procedures for vote counting and totalizing of the results were marked by erroneous completion of minutes and ungrounded refusal to provide observers with copies of the minutes.

Actions aimed at intimidation of the Promo-LEX Observation Mission become a worrying trend

Having organized and run 16 missions, it is for the first time, when the Promo-LEX Association finds that its equidistant monitoring of elections generated negative and apparently coordinated reactions from the CEC members and from certain electoral competitors.

Restrictive and contrary to freedom of expression rules, set up in the CEC Regulation on the Status of Observers, which, against the backdrop of critical and negative reactions of electoral officials and some electoral candidates, led to the cancellation of press conferences traditionally held by the Mission on the Election Day, are to be abrogated as a matter of urgency.

The Promo-LEX OM also emphasizes some isolated cases of intimidation of its territorial observers. In spite of all these situations, the Mission has activated transparently, in compliance with the law in force and in a non-partisan manner.

In the mixed electoral system, political parties continued to play the main role while women candidates were on a back seat

Elections, at the national constituency level, have been competitive, all the applicants being registered without any exceptions. As for the single member constituencies, competitiveness has been affected by problems generated by the verification of signatures on the signature collection sheets. We point out that there were differentiated approaches to candidate registration by electoral bodies and courts in similar cases.

Regarding the designation and registration of candidates, even if the minimum representation rate of 40% for both genders was respected in the national constituency, women candidates were in the minority in this election. In addition, the tendency to avoid placing them on top of the lists was noticed. At the same time, we find a low rate of participation of the independent candidates in single member constituencies: only 59 (18%) of the total of 329 candidates enrolled in the race.

Misuse of administrative resources and lack of equal opportunities in electoral campaign

Electoral competitors did not have equal opportunities in promoting their electoral messages because of the massive misuse of administrative resources. Compared to the presidential elections of 2016, the number of cases of misuse of administrative resources in the parliamentary elections of 2019 increased more than 8-fold, reaching 536 cases. Per competitor: the PDM was targeted in 58% of the cases, the PSRM – in 21%, IC – in 6%, ACUM Bloc – in 6%, the PN – in 4%.

In the opinion of Promo-LEX, misuse of administrative resources offers an undue advantage to the candidates resorting to it, thus prejudicing both the principle of equal opportunities and voters' freedom of opinion.

Additionally, Promo-LEX observers have reported at least 188 cases that can be qualified as gift offering, most of which accounting for the PPS – 37%, the PSRM – 36%, the PDM – 21% 4%.

Poor reflection of financial means used in the campaign reveals a low degree of transparency

The Observation Mission noted the lack of reporting on the lease of campaign premises, remuneration of electoral staffs and volunteers / campaigners, observers and representatives with voting rights on the election day. The total amount of expenditures estimated as unreported – at least 5,200,863 MDL -shows a low degree of transparency in reflecting the financial means used and reported to the CEC (in the total amount of 64,066,042 MDL).

Election Day in the parliamentary elections of 2019 has been marked by a large number of incidents

Following the monitoring of 2094 polling stations out of a total of 2141, the Promo-LEX OM warns of a higher number of incidents compared to other polls – 1118. In quantitative terms, the most often reported incidents were: deficiencies in voters' lists (129), organized transportation of voters to polling stations (123) and photographing of ballot papers or other cases of non-observance of the secret of voting (107).

We highlight another trend in the parliamentary elections of 2019 – the increase in the number of incidents of possible material rewards offered to voters – 59 cases, most of them being reported in the polling stations, where citizens from the Transnistrian region voted.

Deficiencies in the voters' lists and their late submission to the PEB

Another unresolved issue of the electoral process in the Republic of Moldova is the quality of voters' lists, which reveals differences between the number of voters in the State Registry of Voters and that in the voters' lists, erroneous assignment of voters to polling stations, address errors and presence of deceased people on lists.

40% of electoral disputes examined in courts reflect the limitation of voters' freedom to vote

The Promo-LEX OM also draws attention to the defective mechanism for settling appeals and electoral litigation. Out of the total of 96 electoral disputes, 39 were filed on the election day by 236 citizens located abroad with regard to voting with valid identity cards, expired passports, as well as regarding the voting of citizens without a place of residence / domicile within the given SMC. Thus, in the opinion of Promo-LEX, voters' freedom to express their will has been limited.

This electoral campaign has been affected by intimidation, incitement to hatred and discrimination

This election was also marked by a large number of cases of hate speech and incitement to discrimination. Having analyzed the situation from the perspective of types of expressed hatred, we notice that in at least 14 cases (about 40%) of the total of 36 – sexist prejudices and gender stereotypes are exploited and perpetuated in the society.

The Promo-LEX Observation Mission for the parliamentary elections of February 24, 2019 processed in the period of time between 19:00 and 22:00 and presented in this press release 420 incidents:

Promo-LEX Mission: End of election campaign marked by misuse of administrative resources and intimidation

The Promo-LEX Observation Mission (OM) launched its fifth monitoring report on the parliamentary elections of 2019. Similar to the previous reporting periods, the Mission revealed several issues, including misuse of administrative resources, presence of hate speech and incitement to discrimination in competitors' messages, offering of electoral gifts, and unauthorized placement of advertising. Compared to the previous monitoring period, the number of electoral activities has doubled. Additionally, Promo-LEX observers have ascertained the presence of deceased persons and address errors in electoral lists.

Multiple violations on the last leg of the campaign

The Promo-LEX OM has found that the number of electoral activities has virtually doubled compared to the first two weeks of the campaign. A minimum of 1085 events have been registered, of which 31% fall for the PDM; 22% for the PSRM, 12% for the PPS, 11 for ACUM Bloc, and 6% for the PN.

The number of cases that can be qualified as misuse of administrative resources is also increasing, reaching the figure of 196. In 109 of these cases, the PDM is concerned, 36 cases – the PSRM, 14 cases – ACUM Bloc, 13 cases – ICs, 8 cases – the PN, 7 cases – the PPS, 6 cases – the PCRМ and 3 cases – the PL.

Another 3 cases refer to non-compliant use of electoral advertising and 65 cases account for unauthorized placement of advertising.

Actions of the CEC that do not meet the provisions of Electoral Code

The Promo-LEX OM warns against the content of the Circulation Letter issued by the CEC, which provides for derogations from the legal norm on the prohibition of electoral campaigning in the polling station. In the opinion of Promo-LEX, by allowing the use of electoral symbols in the polling station by voters and / or competitors' trustees, the provisions of Art. 52 par. (10) of the Electoral Code will be violated.

Likewise, the Promo-LEX OM considers that approval of the use of video cameras in the polling stations should have been made after the amendment of the Electoral Code. Otherwise, art. 60 of the Electoral Code expressly stipulates the actions taken to ensure the security of the voting process, and this list of actions lacks the provisions regarding the video recording system.

Restricted access to the polling stations of the Transnistrian

region

About 66% of the PSs set up for the Transnistrian region have been relocated, which will hinder voters' access to the polling stations within SMCs no. 47 and 48.

Seven candidates have enrolled in electoral race and three others have officially withdrawn

Having examined the appeals filed by the potential candidates, who had been refused the registration by the CCs until 20.02.2019, the court decided on the registration of 7 of them, as follows: the PPS – 4; the PCRМ – 1 and 2 independent candidates. Other three candidates have officially withdrawn from the race (ICs), and another 2 have announced their withdrawal through social networks (IC and the PDM).

A series of deficiencies in the electoral lists have been identified, as well as their delayed referral to the EBPS

The Promo-LEX OM ascertained the failure to observe the deadlines for transmitting electoral lists to the EBPS in 673 PSs (73%) out of the total of 928 interviews conducted. At the same time, we mention that in 84 of the 255 cases, the EBPS members made changes to improve the quality of electoral lists in the absence of confirmatory documents.

Interviews conducted with members of the 928 EBPSs revealed a number of deficiencies in electoral lists, most notably, the presence of deceased persons (23%); address errors (11%) and erroneous assigning of voters to PSs / settlements (5%). We also draw the reader's attention to a case of possible artificial migration of voters.

Conflicts and electoral litigation

According to the findings of the Promo-LEX OM, during the period subjected to monitoring, 4 complaints were filed within the CCs, 24 complaints were filed with the CEC and decisions were taken with respect to 30 appeals.

During the monitored period, 13 electoral petitions were filed with the courts of first instance, 3 appeals against the CEC and nine appeals against the judgments issued by the courts of Chisinau, Comrat, Drochia, Hincesti and Orhei. 10 appeals have been filed with the Supreme Court of Justice.

Donations exceeding the ceiling of funds that can be transferred to the Electoral Fund account

In the period of 2-15 February 2019, 90% of electoral actors submitted to the CEC reports on the financing of their electoral campaigns. The total amount of financial resources accumulated and reported to the CEC is 24,343,390 lei, and the amount of expenditures incurred is 24,934,331 lei. The sources of financing reported included bank transfers, donations from legal entities and individuals, as well as material donations from electoral candidates.

The Promo-LEX OM found 2 donations, exceeding the ceiling of funds that can be transferred to the Electoral Fund account, amounting to 1,390,000 lei from ExFactor-Grup LLC, transferred on February 14, 2019 to the account of the PPS.

The Promo-LEX OM also noted that the PPS received the donations made on February 14, 2019 by the legal entities that carried out activities financed at public expense a year before the beginning of the electoral campaign, which is forbidden by the Electoral Code (Article 41 par. (3) letter e).

The Promo-LEX OM notes that there is no declaration of expenditures for campaign premises, electoral staffs and campaigners / observers of electoral candidates planned for the election day and hopes that these expenses will be reflected in the final report on the financing of electoral campaign that is to be submitted on February 22, 2019. Thereafter, the Mission estimated unreported expenditures of at least 1,082,137 lei.

Electoral campaign continues to be affected by intimidation, incitement to hatred and discrimination

During the reference period, Promo-LEX continued to monitor hate speech and incitement to discrimination. On the basis of information reported by monitors, at least 4 cases, where electoral competitors generated discriminatory messages or other forms of public intolerance have been identified, of which: the PSRM – 2 cases; ACUM Bloc and the independent candidate Dumitru Cebotarescu – 1 case each.

Promo-LEX: ECtHR Judgement in the Case of Stomatii Entered Into Force, and the Russian Federation is Obligated to Execute it

The European Court of Human Rights (ECtHR) announced that it rejected the request submitted by the Government of the Russian Federation, requesting to refer the case No 69528/10 – Stomatii v. the Republic of Moldova and the Russian Federation, to the Grand Chamber after the ECtHR issued a judgement on 18 September 2018.

The Russian Government requested the re-examination of the ECtHR judgement stipulating that the former violated the right to life in the Transnistrian region and obliging it to pay reparations worth EUR 53,000 to the mother of Alexandru Stomatii – a young man who was forcibly enrolled and murdered in an illegal paramilitary unit from the Transnistrian region.

The appeal of the Russian Government was examined by a panel of five judges of the Grand Chamber of ECtHR who decided to reject the request for the case to be referred to the Grand Chamber. The ECHR reiterates that, in line with Article 44(2) of the European Convention on Human Rights (ECHR), the judgment of 18 September 2018 became final on 4 February 2019.

Alexandru Postica, Director of the Human Rights Program of Promo-LEX Association, said that ‘the judgment of a Chamber shall become final when the panel of five judges of the Grand Chamber of the ECtHR rejects the request for the case to be referred to the Grand Chamber, made by the participants, under the Article 43. In other words, the Russian Federation is Promo-LEX ascertains an increasing trend of using administrative resources for electoral purposes, as well as the fact that some electoral candidates have resorted to discriminatory messages. Moreover, intimidation of Association's observers in the territory has also been amplified.

During the monitoring period (January 23 – February 5), the Observation Mission revealed cases of electoral gift offering, placement of electoral advertisements in unauthorized places and unreported expenses amounting to hundreds of thousands of lei. Some candidates have been subjected to intimidation and violence, and at least 2158 conflicts in the State Electoral Register (SER) remain unresolved.

The Promo-LEX Observation Mission continues to be intimidated

The Promo-LEX OM repeatedly emphasizes the cases of its territorial observers' intimidation. Out of the total of 5 reported incidents, in three cases, Promo-LEX observers have been intimidated by representatives of local governments, in one case, by the supporters of an electoral competitor, and in another case, an LTO has informally found out from reliable sources about the fact that the cars used by Promo-LEX observers are monitored by the police at the request of the SIS.

Electoral candidates continue to use administrative resources for electoral purposes and offer electoral gifts

At the beginning of electoral campaign, the Promo-LEX OM ascertained a six-fold increase in the number of identified electoral events (607), compared to the previous reporting period. Of these, 38% fall for the PSRM, 26% for the PDM, 14% for the PPS and 11% for the Electoral Bloc ACUM: Platform DA and PAS.

The number of cases that can be qualified as misuse of administrative resources is also increasing, reaching at least 85 cases. In 45 of them the PDM is concerned, in 33 cases – the PSRM, the PN and the Electoral Bloc ACUM: Platform DA and PAS – 3 cases each, and the PCRM – 1 case.

Promo-LEX observers reported at least 4 cases that can be qualified as offering of electoral gifts: in 3 cases the PPS is concerned, and in one case, the PSRM.

There have been cases of inconsistent use of electoral advertising: one case of advertising that does not comply with the requirements for advertising materials (the PDM) and 17 cases of placement of advertising in unauthorized places (the PSRM – 6, the PDM – 5, the PPS – 3, ACUM Bloc – 2, the PCRM – 1).

Additionally, there have been reported six cases of intimidation / violence against electoral candidates. In three of these, the candidates of ACUM Bloc were targeted, in 2 cases – the PDM and in one case- the PSRM.

Women and independent candidates are in the minority in this election again

15 candidates have registered in the national constituency (NC) for the parliamentary elections of February 24, 2019. Even though the minimum representation rate of 40% for both genders has been respected by all the competitors, women candidates do not occupy leading positions.

322 electoral candidates have registered in 51 single member constituencies (SMC). Of these, 265 (82%) have been nominated by parties and blocs, and 57 (18%) are independent candidates. Only 20% (66) of candidates registered in SMCs are women, and 80% (256) are men.

The highest rejection rate for competitors' registration has been recorded among independent candidates: at least 15 applications for registration of 72 submitted have been denied (21% of registration files have been rejected).

Quality of electoral lists may be affected by unresolved conflicts persisting the SER

The Promo-LEX OM is concerned about the large number of unresolved conflicts in the State Electoral Register (SER). Thus, when electoral lists were printed, at least 2,158 conflicts identified by 100 registrars of the 279 interviewed remained unresolved.

Likewise, the Promo-LEX OM considers that the current approach used by the CEC to assign registrars tasks, regardless of the number of voters handled by them, is at least ineffective.

Electoral conflicts and litigation

During the monitored period, 7 complaints have been filed within the SMCC, and 36 with the CEC. Most of these (30) have been filed against the SMCC, and one against the CC President, most of which target the SMCC no.48 (4), SMCC no.4 (3) and SMCC no.5 (3). Five appeals have been filed against the actions/ inactions of electoral competitors, of which 2 against the PSRM and two against the PDM. Most complaints concerned the registration / non-registration of electoral competitors (25).

During the monitored period, candidates filed 7 electoral petitions with the courts of the first instance, two contestations and five appeals to the Court of Appeal. Another five appeals have been filed with the Supreme Court of Justice.

Electoral campaign marked by hatred and discrimination

During the reference period, Promo-LEX continued to monitor case of hate speech and incitement to discrimination. On the basis of information reported by observers, at least 5 cases where electoral competitors generated discriminatory messages or other forms of intolerance in public space have been identified, of which, in 3 cases, the PSRM candidates are concerned; the PCRM and ACUM Bloc each in 1 case.

On the other hand, ACUM Bloc has been targeted by hate speech 5 times, the PSRM – twice; the PDM – twice and the PPS – once.

Analyzing the situation in terms of types of hatred expressed, we notice that most of the cases – at least 7 – use sexist prejudices and perpetuate gender stereotypes in the society.

Unreported expenditures amount to at least 826,473 lei

According to our findings, by February 1, 2019, none of the candidates representing the following political parties: the MPSN, PVE, PVP, MPA, PL and the PPDA presented either the financial report or the commitment to incur no expenses. Only one independent candidate out of the 38, who did not report financial reports, (I.C. Maxim Uvarov) informed the CEC about his non-expenditure commitment.

In the period of 25 January – 1 February 2019, the total amount of financial means accumulated and reported to the CEC by the electoral candidates reached 23,304,522 lei and the amount of expenditures -19,210,582 lei. The highest share of reported spending – 95% falls for advertising and promotional materials, followed by spending on events and meetings – 3%, transportation costs- 1% and 1% falls for other expenses.

The Promo-LEX OM estimated total unreported expenses of at least 828,423 lei. Thus, the PSRM failed to report at least 668,407 lei, the PN -70,050 lei, the PDM-52,440 lei, the PRM – 1,950 lei, the PL – 1,950 lei, the PPDA – 975 lei, the PCRM – 700 lei, I.C. Leonid Macari – 5,384 lei, I.C. Valeriu Ghiletschi – 3,901 lei, I.C. Gheorghe Furdui – 5,023 lei, I.C. Bobeica Gheorghe – 7,159 lei, I.C. Aricov Gheorghe – 3,000 lei, I.C. Cebotarescu Dumitru – 2,865 lei, I.C. Calin Vieru – 3,749 lei, I.C. Alexandru Bujoreanu – 870 lei.
